What do I need to do first?

The first thing to think about is which Funeral Director you would like to use, as we need to know this as soon as possible.

There is a list of local Funeral Directors at the end of this leaflet, but please note that these are not recommendations, and that others are also available.

arranging a funeral

During this pandemic, a number of restrictions have been put in place relating to the way in which a funeral can take place. We would recommend that you talk with your chosen Funeral Director about what is currently possible before making any definite decisions. Below are a number of ideas that you might like to consider:

With the numbers of mourners currently restricted, you might want to think about other ways in which people may be able to watch or listen to the service, such as through a video link or recording.

Mourners who are unable to attend could be sent an Order of Service prior to the day and invited to follow the service at home, perhaps lighting a candle next to a photo of the person they are remembering.

Where possible, some families have asked the Funeral Directors to drive the hearse past the houses of close relatives who cannot attend the service, or past some of their loved one's favourite places.

It is useful to think through the seating plan at any service, to make sure that people who have been self-isolating do not feel anxious about being too close to others, or set apart and alone.

Whilst traditional wakes are not possible, you might want to consider going for a socially distanced walk or finding an open space where people can talk together.

In addition to the funeral, you might also want to consider holding a special event at a future date to celebrate your loved one's life.

At Phyllis Tuckwell we hold regular services to remember all those who have died in our care. At a date in the future, which is still to be confirmed, we will hold a special 'Time to Remember' service for all those who have died during the pandemic. We will update our website about the event as soon as we are able to hold such an event.

If your loved one died under the care of Phyllis Tuckwell, you may like to join the nationwide "Yellow Heart" initiative and display a Phyllis Tuckwell yellow heart in your window. It shows that you are grieving for your loved one, and reminds you that you are not alone and that their memory lives on in your heart.

In these unprecedented times we are conscious that the situation that you find yourself in is not what you imagined at the end of your loved one's life. At Phyllis Tuckwell we cannot take your pain away, but we will do what we can to help. If you would like to find out more about any of the suggestions above, please contact the Patient and Family Support Team on 01252 729430 or email pafs@pth.org.uk
